Foreword

It is well known that Jcycn has been actively engaged in advocacy and campaign for the right of children and youth. The journey was initiated by a very young group of children below the age of 10 back in 1992 through the Jagriti Child Club.

Our combat for social justice in Nepali society was started with the fight for child participation in the social spheres by filing a case at the Supreme Court in 1999 turning it in our favor in 2001 which pave way for Nepali children to register Child club. Now we have observed almost 25,000 child clubs across the country.

Marching forward, expanding its working scopes, Jcycn was established in 2001 and registered on 3 October 2004.

Gaining substantial experiences on the grassroots level of work, local bodies, the national level of policy advocacy, and international level of solidarity over the period of time, Jcycn has been additionally engaged in community development, disaster responses, and recoveries.

It has been a privilege for Icycn to lead Social Organizations' Network Affiliated to

National Youth Council, National Child-Friendly Local Government Forum, Social Protection Civil Society Network, and National Coalition for Girls Rights currently.

This would not have been possible without coordination and collaboration with both state and non-state stakeholders. Jcycn express its sincere gratitude to its right holders, collaborative partners and supporters around the world.

Jeyen would like to present this annual report that gives a brief about its achievements, basically from the year of 2019-2020, wish you a good reading.

We hope these pages will inspire you to join us in our mission in being Partners for Good and wish to receive continuous support from all our well-wisher.

Project Updates

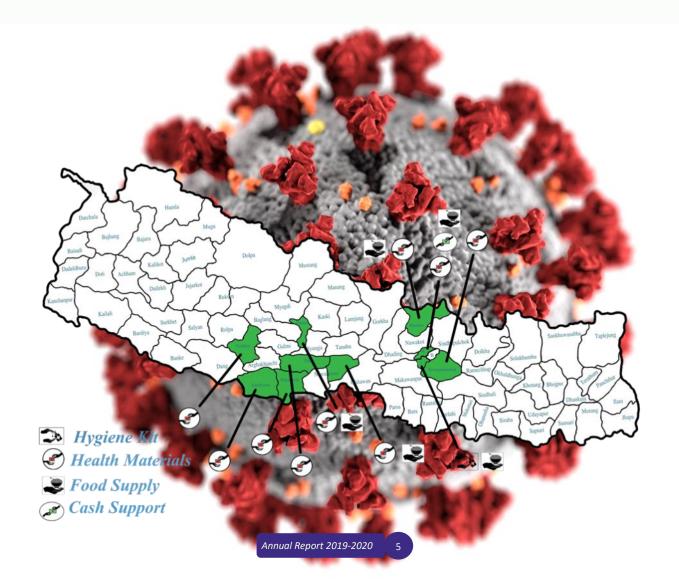

COVID-19 Responding

As the entire world is gripped by the pandemic of COVID-19, Nepal, the country still trying to recover from the mega earthquake of 2015 is no exception. Nepal's government issued a nation-wide lockdown order from 24th March 2020 with the full restriction on vehicular movement and individual mobility.

With the lockdown, the food crisis is inevitable and many have already started seeing impacts of it. There is not enough production of food in the rural area and wage workers in urban area are having difficulty making ends meet. In the other hand, however, quarantine centres are set up, temporary hospitals, laboratory facilities are being upgraded across the country, Nepal observed severe shortfall of even basic health materials.

Responding to the situation, Jcycn continued its effort to respond COVID-19 in its best way possible without being tired. After reaching over 2400 people with food support in the first phase, Jcycn reached 21 local institutions and health facilities in 16 municipals of nine districts with health-related materials that are primarily required to stay out of potential infection of COVID 19.

The incessant rainfall in different parts of the country from 11 to 15 July 2019 triggered floods and landslides in Provinces 1, 2 and 3. The floods and landslides affected thousands of families with significant loss of lives, property, livelihoods, and infrastructures. The floods had damaged houses, affected livestock, stored grains, crops and daily consumables.

To address concerns such as food, water, sanitation and hygiene, Shelter caused by the disaster, Jcycn in consortium with other partners in six districts across province 2, emergency response was launched with food packages enough for at least 2 to 4 weeks, tarpaulins to some displaced families, hygiene kits including water purification tablets or liquids and mosquito nets.

Eight years old Kasar Kumar loves arts. Unlike other children of his age, he spends most of his time drawing at home.

Until a month ago, the young man of grade two had set one of the walls of the house as the art corner.

Unfortunately, the flood swept away all his arts, damaging the wall of the house, food provisions and other utilities.

For Kasar, all of sudden everything stocked. Neither had he had a place at home to study nor could he go to school. The school was also flooded.

Hari Om, his younger brother of five, parents and grandparents remained flooded for a week.

"Our grandparents were sobbing most of the times; we were scared after being displaced from the flood in our own home", Kasar recalls.

When the water level was down, it wasn't still easy for six-membered family to set up bed and kitchen outside amidst contaminated water with the risk of vector-borne disease.

Meantime, Jcycn reached out to the flood affected families with immediate support package that included wash kits, blanket, and torchlight, mosquito net, and food packets. This will hold them at least for a while.

bites."

"Jcycn came on right time", "It was not much but crucial", Debkum Devi, the mother joined the conversation.

Kasar and Hariom are well educated on maintaining daily personal hygiene by their mother.

This has been possible even in the time of disaster with the Jcycn's supported WASH kit.

"My mother teaches us hand washing after using the toilet", Kasar adds.

It has been a week since both brothers had resumed school.

Hariom is happy to be back at school with his brother.

"I brush my teeth every day after breakfast and go to school", he says.

During the monsoon of 2019, small efforts of Jcycn has helped 1436 flood-affected families like Kasar's for the speedy recovery so that they can restore their dailies in remote Siraha in eastern Nepal.

Ensuring Safer Migration

Besides that, the project aims to reach returnees from foreign employment. The project believes that the skills, knowledge and experience that the returnees possess could be the most effective tools to aware the active population aspiring to foreign migration or employment. The families of migrants could play a significant role in promoting the cycle of safer migration by keeping the strong family bond, managing remittance properly and doing follow up with their family member abroad.

program.

Facts and Figure

- 125 youth have received vocational training
- 192 have received pre-departure orientation
- 118 families of migrant workers are provided counselling
- 127 youth were provided career counselling
- 300 youth engaged in various awareness campaign
- 79 school children engaged in the project related extra curriculum activities
- 28 local leaders and elected representatives engaged in the social dialogue for safer migration

Six years of employment in the United Arabs Emirates was not sufficient for Rajan Shrestha, 29, to cover expenses of his ill mother.

Ultimately, being forced to return back home to take care of his sick mother, after the six months of his arrival his mother passed in the duration of treatment. Due to his mother's treatment, he went out of money.

It was a hard time to re-integrate in Nepal as he was out of track to work in the locality. He even couldn't restart the photo studio which was left before going to UAE due to lack of money.

He had to search for the job to manage his family but his interest and experience were related to photography. He wanted to do something by enhancing his knowledge of videography. But he did not have sufficient budget for payment. Finally, he reached the project team and proposed for the training.

He joined three months long video editing course supported by the project. After completing the training, he found a small job as a video editor in Kathmandu. Now he earns around 20,000 rupees on a monthly basis. He says "This life skill training has become a perfect match to my interest and very useful. I am very happy with the project team for providing me with such an opportunity."

Amrit Moktan, 27, says "thank you" all the way from Dubai. "I must thank all the teams who provided me an opportunity and brought a change in my life from this project," he said.

Two years before, when he came to know about the project during the career counselling programme, he expressed his high interest as many others and applied for the opportunity.

After going through tough competition and full filling all the criteria, he was selected as a trainee.

After the completion of the training, he worked in Nepal as a cook for a few months to gain experiences.

Later on, he got the opportunity to boost up his confidence in the cooking field.

Now he is working in Dubai as a cook of the restaurant with having happiness no bound; "I am extremely glad for the training of cook from the project that enabled me to get the right job in Dubai with attractive salary and benefits."

Empower a Girls, Change the World

With the aim to eliminate all forms of violence and discrimination against girls in the public and private spheres, the Girls Empowerment Programme has been designed which is being implemented contributing the Sustainable Development Goal - 5: Gender Equality by 2030 in Devchuli Municipality, Nawalpur since 2018.

A total of 45 young girls are well trained on self-defence, life skill education, gender equality, reproductive health and hygiene, conflict and violence, girls' rights and child rights who as a peer educator have reached over 6,000 other girls of their age individually while over 20,000 in the community as a whole.

Devchuli municipality declared as a child-friendly municipality.

Two girls are internationally awarded for their grassroots actions in empowering girls through the project activities.

With the objectives of raising awareness regarding gender equality, creating a platform for girls to share their inspirational stories, and generating public awareness regarding government plans, policies, and initiatives regarding gender equality and girls' empowerment, one television and two radio programmes are being conducted.

Television Programme

23 Episodes of Sakchhin Chhori; a television talk show programmes has been broadcasted by Nepal Television (NTV Plus) that has Televison Rating Point of 10 million viewers. The same has been published on the Facebook page with followers over 10,000 Facebook users.

Radio Programme

Happy FM and Kawasoti FM aired talk programmes, and service announcements on girls' empowerment and with geographical coverage in Chitwan, Nawalparasi, Tanahun, Palpa and Syangja districts and Facebook reach over 35,000 people.

On the top of Asian Girls

19 years old Asha B.K, in Kawasoti municipality in Nawalpur is one of the peer educators supported by the project for the empowerment young girls in her village.

Being a girl from a socially excluded and economically marginalized family in a son preference society, Asha was given birth as a fourth child of her parent in an expectation of a boy child.

That is why she was named "Asha" which means "hope", Said Asha. Definitely, her mother gave birth to a boy child much later.

Being a peer educator supported by Jcycn, Asha developed her interest to become a Kickboxing Player. She would go around the village and share her knowledge of girls' empowerment and other protection issues related to the children, especially the girl child.

She leads Jagriti child club that has fostered her social actions aiming to build her municipality a girl-friendly place to live.

Asha has been conducting an orientation program on reusable cloth pad making training, self-defence training and leadership development training parallel to her kickboxing training at the highest level of parental satisfaction.

Geeta, the mother feels ashamed for expecting son while giving birth to Asha.

"I was sad when I gave birth to Asha, but now I realize that if it was a son, he would probably not capable as Asha is." - She said.

For the remarkable work and performance, Asha was awarded by Asian Girl Community Development Award held at Taiwan in 2019.

Earthquake Recovery

The people have been displaced or had to leave the village. In Karumarnag village of Uttargaya rural municipality, the school was destroyed, people lost their livelihoods and they had to migrate in search of better options of income and education for their children. The village also witnessed higher rate of school dropped out and child marriage in the past.

Therefore a project has been launched to rebuild a child-friendly school, restoring livelihood and creating social awareness among the villagers. Similarly, to uplift the income generation of people living in Bulingtar village in Nawalpur, livelihood support has been provided.

Employment Creation

72 local villagers have got short term employment making earning up to 60,000 Nepalese rupees per person.

19 youth have started their own small job locally or abroad.

Livelihoods

67 small farmers families have received agriculture-related training and support to enhance their technical knowledge of modern farming.

134 goats were provided to 65 families including goat insurance and goat shed.

72 local villagers have got short term employment making earning up to 60,000 Nepalese rupees per person.

100 families are engaged in saving and credits among themselves.

Many school-going children are out of school and child marriage is highly prevails in the Karumarang village in remote Rasuwa District.

Women including young mothers suffer a lot especially due to the early birth and by using contraceptives. The village looks as if it is at the early stage of development and is inhabited by only Tamang ethnic people; RojinaTamang is one of them.

Can anyone imagine how it would have been the situation of young Rojina when she had to give birth to a child at the age of 15 where there was not even a basic health facility? Mentally and physically immature Rojina has already become a mother of four at the age of 24 by now.

More hardship has befallen to a young mother of two with seven months old lap baby when a devastating earthquake stroked in 2015.

The entire village was destroyed including a primary school where her eldest child used to study. More than half of the villagers set up displaced camp in another village leaving behind all their ancestral properties. Small barren land the villagers had, remained unploughed for years.

The story does not end here; a woman with her third baby in a womb in displacement camp was not an easy life either.

"It wasn't easy to sustain life, no idea how to manage daily bread for my children" – she recalled.

After two years of displacement, her family returned to Karumarang but there was nothing much to do.

The family started their traditional way of raising livestock and farming but was not able to meet their every day's demand. Nor they could have any employment opportunity in the locality.

Living in a life of insufficiency and hardship was troublesome.

The situation of Karumarang village was brought to the attention of Jcycn by the local community leaders and village representatives. Consequently, after several months of exercise, Safer School and Recovery of Livelihood Project was launched.

"Jagriti (Jcycn) came like on dead on time," she said.

The project is employing school construction and cash for work programs and helping villagers on modern farming techniques.

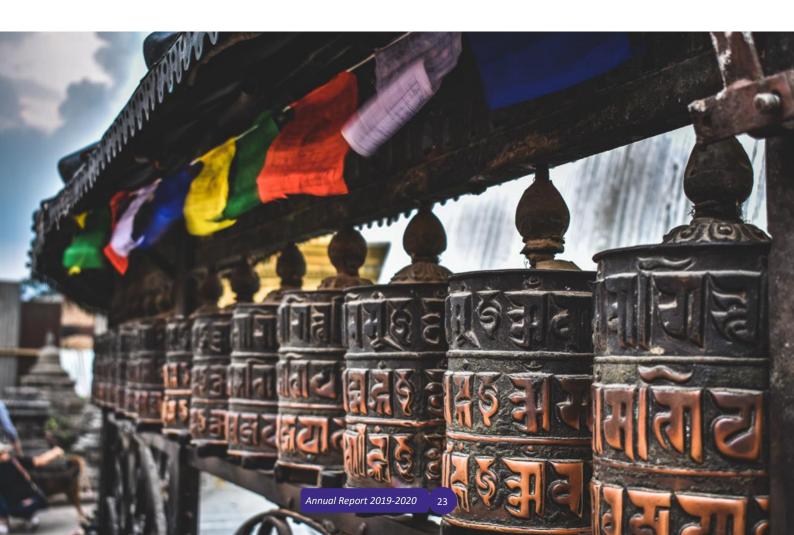

Rojina was nominated by the villagers as one of the leaders in a community group formed by Jcycn to conduct the entire recovery activity, she looks after the financial part in the group.

This has given a new direction, a new hope not only for Rojina but to the whole village.

"After being appointed as the treasurer for "Janajagriti Community Group," I have learned saving and credits and community mobilization".

Rojina actively took part in the agricultural training conducted by Jcycn and practices her learning in the field. She also runs a small shop for the villagers while her husband works in the construction.

Everything is about to transform with new hope and life after the disaster. Her eldest son has joined the school in the village even though the class is run in TLC as the new building is under construction...... She expresses how hopeful she is to provide education facilities to her children and fulfill the basic needs of her family by uplifting lifestyle and work for the betterment of her marginalized community.

We are stronger together

Ever since its foundation, Jeyen has been actively engaged in advocacy and campaign for the right of lt upholding children. has been the issue concerning them such as child-friendly local governance. At present lcycn serves as a secretariat of National child-friendly Local Government Forum consequently so far, 40 local level institutions have been declared as CFLG.

After the extensive engagement at the second cycle of Nepal's Universal Periodic Review (UPR) at United Nations, advocating, lobbying in both Kathmandu and Geneva for human rights in eight thematic issues through coalitions of 75 organizations across the country was not only a mere reporting but also building capacity of Nepali civil societies in the year of 2014-015. Much later, national coalition for girls rights; a national level loose consortium of 42 organizations was formed at the leadership of Jcycn in 2019. The consortium has been promoting girls empowerment through its advocacy activities and has participated in the third cycle of Nepal's UPR reporting process as well.

Joycn has been providing chairmanship to the Social Protection Civil Society Network is a liberal forum comprising 19 various civil societies who are dedicated for improving Social Protection Programs in Nepal focusing Children, Older Person, Working Age Population and Health.

Since the Novel Corona Virus is a communicable virus that transmits easily, mostly when we are exposed to the virus and then touch our mouth, nose, or eyes. So, every time I have to go out, I wear a facemask, gloves, glasses, a wind cheater, full trousers, and synthetic shoes that I can easily wash with soap water. I also make sure to always carry a hand sanitizer.
